Preparedness Levels & Great Basin Fire Activity (from WFDSS)

Great Basin	PL 3	Light Initial Attack Activity
National	PL 5	New Fires and Acres: 11 fires for 2,034.15 acres / 221 acres Large Fire Growth

Weather:

... Smoke Returns This Weekend ...

... Hot Temperatures through the Weekend ...

... Deeper Monsoon Moisture Increasing through Early Next Week in the South/Eastern Great Basin ...

... Gusty Winds and Low RH Early Next Week in Western Nevada into Southwest Idaho ...

High pressure dominates the weather pattern across the western U.S. with hot and generally dry conditions regionwide. Isolated thunderstorms are possible over the higher elevations of far eastern Utah on Sunday. Northerly winds also pick up over the higher terrain of northern and central Utah on Sunday. The high pressure shifts further west on Monday allowing limited moisture to move northward for isolated, mixed wet/dry thunderstorms over eastern NV and the eastern Idaho mountains.

A low-pressure system drops into the Pacific NW on Tuesday bringing increased winds to western NV. This increased southerly flow will also pull monsoon moisture into Utah for isolated to scattered showers and thunderstorms across much of Utah on Tuesday, spreading further north into eastern Idaho and western Wyoming for Wednesday. The low tracks across the central Idaho mountains on Wednesday bringing a pretty good cool down (10-15 degrees) too much of the region by Wednesday/Thursday.

A drier weather patterns returns to the Great Basin by the end of the work week.

Fuels/Fire Potential:

... Fuels and Fire Behavior Advisory in Effect for the Sierra Front above 5500 Feet ...

Fire danger is increasing regionwide under the hot and dry airmass through the next few days with gusty winds over Utah and Nevada. Southerly moisture coming to Utah midweek will decrease the over fire danger there as showers and thunderstorms develop. Cooler temperatures next week will also temporarily decrease fire danger for much of the area.
